How long do we store your personal data?

In general, Medius will only retain your personal data for as long as necessary for the stated purpose, while also taking into account our need to answer queries or resolve problems and to comply with legal requirements under applicable law. This means that we may retain your personal data for a reasonable period after your last interaction with us (normally for a period of three calendar years from your last interaction with us). How do we share your personal data?

Ensuring your privacy is important to Medius. We do not share your personal data with third parties except as described in this privacy policy. We may share your personal data with:

- Third party service providers (for example to partners that are administrating webinars or websites on behalf of Medius);
- Business partners;
- Affiliated companies within our corporate structure; and
- As needed for legal purposes (for example to authorities in accordance with applicable laws and regulations).

Medius may also share your personal data in connection with mergers, acquisitions or divestiture of all or parts of Medius' business, where the acquiring entity as well as its consultants and Medius' own consultants may obtain access to data managed by Medius. When sharing your personal data with third parties we take appropriate technical, organizational and legal measures in accordance with applicable data protection legislation. When required by applicable law, Medius has established Data Processing Addendums with any third party with which your personal data is shared.

Export of personal data

For personal data collected within EEA, the personal data collected is generally processed within EEA. In cases where Medius exports your personal data outside the EEA, such export is based either on a decision by the EU Commission that the third country in question ensures an adequate level of protection, or on appropriate safeguards to ensure that your rights are protected. Examples of appropriate protection measures are approved code of conduct in the recipient country, standard contract clauses, binding company internal rules or Privacy Shield.

Specifics about e-mails

In cases where an e-mail sent to or from Medius contains personal data, Medius' receipt/dispatch and further processing of such e-mail means that we process personal data. E-mails almost always contain personal data because the e-mail address itself is usually considered as personal data. The e-mail may also contain other information that is considered as personal data. When Medius sends e-mails, we either do so to communicate with the recipient (e.g. to reply to an e-mail from him/her or to ask a question), or to inform the recipient of something.

The content of incoming e-mail is usually unknown when the email is received by Medius. When that is the case, the personal data contained in the e-mail is processed by Medius for the purpose of receiving and reading the e-mail to assess if the e-mail shall be deleted or if Medius shall take action. For e-mails sent from Medius, similar considerations are made in connection with dispatch of the e-mails.

If Medius, after receipt of an incoming e-mail, or in connection with sending an outgoing e-mail, considers that the e-mail should not be deleted, and that further processing is necessary, Medius will on a case-by-case basis decide the legal basis, means and period for the processing. The legal basis for the processing of e-mails depends among other things on the content of the e-mail and whether Medius has any relationship with the recipient/sender. If an email received by Medius contains personal data about a third-party individual, Medius will inform such individual that Medius processes personal data about him/her, provided (i) the identity of the individual is clear and (ii) the provision of such information proves impossible or would involve a disproportionate effort for Medius.

If Medius upon receipt/dispatch of an e-mail, determines that the e-mail shall be deleted, deletion will be made within a reasonable time after receipt/dispatch. If Medius determines that further actions will be taken, it depends on the content of the e-mail, as well as the continued processing and purpose of the same, how long the e-mail, including the personal data, will be kept by Medius

Security

Medius takes security seriously. We take various steps to protect information you provide to us from loss, misuse, and unauthorized access or disclosure.

These steps take into account the sensitivity of the information we collect, process and store, and the current state of technology.
